CLOSE THEM SOFTLY

Treasury statisticians are taking a couple of final worried peeks at the figures, row on row, then closing the books on the good old fiscal year 1938. Beginning July 1, they'll transfer the totals to a new set of books.

Good old fiscal year 1938 deserves to rest in peace. Let the old books be closed so softly not a cipher will be disturbed. This was the year in which revenue flowed into the treasury like water. It was the year in which the government hoped to be able to cut down on spending. It was the year in which the budget was to be balanced—one of the years.

Well, it didn't turn out that way, though the deficit will be somewhat smaller than usual. The budget won't be balanced in 1939, either. There's already a deficit of $5,000,000,000 proportions in sight—enough to shove the national debt well over the 40 billion dollar mark.

At present there's a statutory limitation of $45,000,000,000 on the total national debt under the Liberty Bond act of 1917, basic law with respect to the national debt. A year from now, the national debt probably will reach at least $42,000,000,000. The statutory limit can be changed any time by act of congress. What should it be next year?

FAITH RESTORED

The astonishing thing about the Ohio highway investigation board's report isn't the charges it contains, but the fact it contains something besides whitewash.

This is said with full respect for the half dozen educators who served on the board, but in recognition of the frequency with which honest investigators play into the hands of politicians.

The things found to be wrong with Ohio's highway department aren't surprising. All of them have been hinted at in previous charges, or are matters of common gossip—collusive bidding, political spoolmanship in the department, excessive costs, contract manipulation, etc.

But this is a board named by Gov. Davey after opponents had put his administration on the spot. A critical report will hurt the governor in this campaign year, even though the report contains, also, praise for other details of highway administration.

It almost restores confidence in the special commission method of dealing with knotty political problems. Perhaps Herbert Hoover's big idea isn't so bad after all. Ohio now knows what's wrong with its highway system—not from the mouths of partisans, but from the pens of fact finders.

SO THEY KILLED THE GOOSE

As every rube knows, the circus is a gamble. Given good times and good weather, it makes a killing. Denied one or the other, it hopes to break even. Denied both, it goes broke.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey has returned to winter quarters this summer after nine weeks on the road. Things hadn't been breaking well; the times were bad, the weather was no better.

On top of everything else, the show's newly unionized and newly aggressive employees began to complain and finally called a strike in Scranton, Pa. The management decided to quit taking a beating; it was no use trying to gamble without cooperation.

Forget the spangles and sawdust. Forget the glamor. Forget the steam callopes. The circus business is just a cold-blooded business, like dozens of others. When its problems outweigh its prospects, despite its traditional hold on the boys and girls and the mothers

HERE ARE FDR'S ANTI-TRUST INVESTIGATORS

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Nine attorneys, two economists and a business man form the committee which is ready to investigate the anti-trust problem for congress and President Roosevelt.

Politically, the three senators, three house members and six federal officials range from ardent Roosevelt supporters to arch-conservatives. In age they range from 39 to 75.

Here are thumbnail sketches of the 12 men:

Thurman W. Arnold, 46, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust litigation; drives to work in a $45 automobile which he says "suits me fine"; former Yale law professor; author of best sellers on economics; advocates a realistic approach to anti-trust legislation.

William O. Douglas, 39, chairman of the securities commission; expressed goal is "demonstration of industry"; has said management must be made "responsive to the desires and demands of the real owners"; the stockholders, of business; on leave from law professorship at Yale.

Herman Oliphant, 54, general counsel of the treasury; author of much New Deal monetary and tax legislation; former law professor at Chicago, Columbia and John Hopkins; in original group of policy-making advisers who helped determine the course of the New Deal.

Isador Lubin, 42, chief of the labor department's bureau of statistics; has engaged in economic research most of his life; considered an expert on labor as an economic factor in industry; among his duties is compilation of statistics on payrolls and employment.

Richard C. Patterson, 54, assistant secretary of commerce; formerly executive vice president of the National Broadcasting Company; has been associated with other large business and financial enterprises; appointed to present post only two months ago.

and fathers of America, it folds up. Those who had been making a living by working for it aren't making a living any more. That's all there is to it.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, July 2.

Judging by the lunar and mutual aspects, this may prove a day for settling some lagging accounts, recasting the budget or otherwise taking stock of frozen assets. There are signs of peculiar situations, possibly with petty enmities, strife or greed involved.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which there may be some calling to account in finances, with revamped budgets or efforts to restore credit. This may be the result of rash speculation, unwise expenditures in attempts at expansion, or possibly through individual extravagance or social indulgences.

A child born on this day may have a large, generous, expansive and indulgent nature. It may be prone to extravagance, show and magnanimous gestures that may lead it "on the rocks" or into financial difficulties.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland, New York City.

RELAXATION

RECENTLY I had dinner with an eminent lawyer. During the course of the conversation he confessed his envy of anyone who can relax and enjoy some hobby or pastime. For years, he said, he had tried unsuccessfully to develop the art of play. My friend expressed the belief that his general health would be better if he could rid himself at times of the tension of a busy life.

There is no doubt he is right. The lack of a hobby or some form of relaxation is really a calamity for the indoor man or woman. I sometimes wonder if this is not a variety of selfishness. Perhaps we secretly or unknowingly enjoy hard work and on that account hate the thought of relaxation.

Should Learn Early

Lack of such enjoyment can be traced sometimes to the failure of learning to play in early adult life. Most psychologists and nerve experts agree that the development of a hobby in early life is a valuable asset; it is money in the bank of health. Anyhow, it guards against the common disorders and complaints of middle age.

Since the exercise of hobbies aids in physical and mental relaxation, they should be encouraged. Every child should be guided and helped in the development of a useful hobby.

There is no doubt of the value of adequate rest and daily relaxation. This is well confirmed by the fact that the individuals who acquire a hobby and learn at an early age how to relax, rarely suffer from such disorders as high blood pressure, nervousness, heart disease and other factors that tend to shorten the span of life. These disturbances are the bane of middle age, and often interfere with the joy of life.

Need of Vacation

As a preventative measure, physicians always have advised the need of a vacation. But annual vacations in themselves are not sufficient. The marked tension and pressure of modern civilization are sure to take their toll unless there are regular periods of play and rest no matter how short the time devoted to them.

Prolonged vacations are desirable, of course, if one can afford them. They help to guard against disease. But it is too bad to resort to a vacation merely because of sheer exhaustion. It is far better to guard against this exhaustion.

The act of relaxation cannot be acquired overnight. Some persons are born with this art, but many others must acquire it. Constant tension and nerve energy are fatiguing factors that lead to poor health.

Red Cross Sounds Warning Against Hazards Of July 4

National Officers List Three Chief Causes of Accidents and Suggest Safety Measures

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—The War of the Revolution will be fought in gala mood this year, with battlefields transferred to the nation's back yards, its highways and swimming places, the American Red Cross pointed out today in its annual drive to limit the results of "assault and battery by carelessness" over the July Fourth weekend.

In a nation-wide plea for strict observance of safety rules, officials of the organization stressed the fact that again this year celebrants face triple exposure to accidents over the holidays. They urged extreme safeguards in the use of fireworks, in water sports and in motoring.

Asks Chapter's Aid

Enroute from the International Red Cross conference in London, Chairman Norman H. Davis yesterday called on local chapters throughout the country to do everything possible to curb independence day casualties.

"We must make every effort to prevent recurrence of the suffering and death these days of celebration have caused in the past," he said. "Our 3,700 Red Cross chapters again this year are concentrating their efforts on warning communities about the unwise use of fireworks, the danger of swimming hazards and highway accidents. Let's all pay particular attention to these holiday hazards and make this an 'accidentless' Fourth!"

According to John Melpolder, director of Red Cross home and farm accident prevention service, fireworks alone, in the past 30 years, have killed or maimed more than 100,000 Americans who were commemorating an independence which has proved more costly to celebrate than to gain. He pointed out that because of the human factor involved, there is no such thing as "safe fireworks."

In order to avoid tragedy and property loss, he urged strict observance of local and state ordinances regulating the sale and use of fireworks. He also recommended that an adult supervise the shooting of all firecrackers, Roman candles and other pyrotechnics.

Turning to highway accidents, the Red Cross says motor vehicles will take a greater holiday toll than fireworks. This prediction, they point out, is based on previous Fourth of July automobile fatality records and on their own highway first aid experience. More than 4,000 emergency first aid stations and mobile first aid units have been established by the Red Cross on rural highways to give immediate care to injured motorists.

Safe Driving Rule

Harold F. Enlow, director of Red Cross first aid and life saving service, suggests the following safe driving rules:

"Be especially careful of pedestrians while driving at night. Many of them do not walk to the left, facing traffic, as they should."

readily from a considerable distance.

"Drive with utmost care after dark. Rural highway accidents at night have increased 60 per cent since 1930. Daylight accidents have gone up 15 per cent."

Enlows also stressed the fact that holiday crowds must reckon water accidents as one of the chief hazards of the Fourth. Of the estimated 7,100 persons drowned last year, 5,000 were listed as "swimming deaths," he said.

LONDON—There will be no more horses in England in 20 years, they continue disappearing at the present rate. The latest official statistics show that they are vanishing at the rate of between 50,000 and 60,000 a year.

PROTECT LOVED ONES

Editor, The News:

As the time is near at hand for the annual return of Independence day and the voice of the firecracker is heard in the land, I thought it might be expedient to bring to mind a few of the many dangers which accompany this day of joy and gladness, joy that so often turns to sorrow.

What a bitter and relentless sorrow, when we see those who are so near and dear to us, perhaps a son, a daughter, a sister or brother, maimed or perhaps blinded for life. Do you not think it worth while to give a few moments thought to this great misfortune? How much would you give to restore this one who is so much to you to his former self. Ah, there is no price so great which lies within your power, no sacrifice too colossal.

The writer may be called an old fogey. I am quite willing to answer to that name through life if I may be the means of averting even a minor accident. Now granting that they must have fireworks, you owe it to your children to instruct them in their proper use so that they may still have their eyes to look upon you with joy and respect with those wonderful orbs with which nature has so kindly endowed them.

"CONTRABAND" by Dennis Wheatley

CHAPTER XXI

Almost sick with horror, he pulled at the useless rip and time ceased to exist at such moments. He was still plunging downwards at a fantastic speed and had virtually given himself up as finished when, without a second's warning, his arms were nearly torn out of their sockets and a violent jerk at the belt round his middle drove the breath out of his body.

He had forgotten that a short interval must elapse between releasing the parachute and its opening to its full spread when it would arrest his headlong descent.

His feet sank down lower than his head and before he knew quite what had happened he was standing upright, swaying a little from side to side, his long legs dangling, almost collapsing with relief he could look upwards and saw the dome of the fully opened parachute like a great dark mushroom against the starlit sky above.

For the first time since leaving the plane he was able to gasp in a full breath and look about him anxiously. The "T" of flares was still larger now but only the blackness of the land below had caused him to think he was so near it. His terror had been engendered by his complete inexperience for he had made a good take-off, although he had lost the seconds before being able to pull the rip cord; but when he had done so the parachute had opened perfectly.

The lights were now rising gently towards his right, but he did not seem to be coming any nearer to them, and he judged that he would make his landing quite a long distance from the smugglers' secret base. Next moment the flares disappeared from view, blotted out by an unseen crest. Then his right leg "hit something" with a thud and instantly he was sprawling on the ground with every ounce of weight knocked out of his body.

For a moment he remained there, motionless and breathless, then he struggled into a sitting position and wriggled out of his harness. Only a dull glow, coming from over a crest of rising ground to the north, now indicated the smugglers' landing place. Abandoning the parachute he set off towards the north.

Pressing forward warily, he stumbled at almost every step, and was compelled to alter his course through some obstacle every ten yards or so. He thanked his gods that at least it was August. Most of the smaller watercourses now had dry beds and the marshland squelched underfoot only in the lower places.

As it was, he had to cross two creeks—stagnant, scummy bands of water with muddy bottoms which heaped and sucked at his boots when he floundered through them and thrust his way among the tall reed-like reeds that fringed their banks.

It was a nightmare journey. Wet to the waist, tired, bruised and aching, he struggled onward; yet the glow from the flares seemed little more and the going so difficult he doubted if he had traversed more than half a mile in twenty minutes. Then he came to a wire fence, climbed over, and found a steep grassy bank, up which he crawled on all fours. The top was level; next moment he tripped and came down heavily between two railway lines.

Picking himself up with renewed energy, he found he could now see the flares some distance away on the far side of the embankment, and turned northwest along it.

He had barely covered another hundred yards when he caught the sound of a train puffing up from Dungeness behind him. He slid down the bank to conceal himself while it passed.

A short freight train of no more than half a dozen boxcars rumbled by, shaking the embankment. The sparks from its engine and the glare of the firebox temporarily lit up a small section of the surrounding country.

When the train had gone past Gregory stumbled on to the tracks again and set off after it. To his surprise he saw it pull up ahead of him, opposite the flares.

Five minutes later he was within fifty yards of the train's rear car and, slipping down the far side of the embankment, he crawled along under its cover until he could see by the bright light of the landing flares the business which was going on nearby. Beyond the flares were a couple of big planes and the smaller one in which the Limper had arrived from Quex Park. The others had already left and big stacks of boxes at intervals on a level stretch of ground showed where they had unloaded their cargoes. One of the large planes took the air as he watched and he was able to see enough of it to recognize it as a 240 h.p. twin engine De Havilland Dragon, which would normally carry eight passengers, but in their place was capable of transporting about half a ton of cargo.

At the bottom of the embankment he wriggled through the fence and found a dry gully which offered such excellent cover that he determined to risk crawling even nearer; soon he was crouching in it no more than twenty yards from the landing ground.

About forty men were working with frantic speed unloading the train, pitching dozens of wooden boxes down the embankment. They had already cleared the first three cars and, while a number of them attacked the rest, the others went off to get the boxes which had been unloaded from the planes.

For ten minutes Gregory remained a silent spectator of their intense activity. By the end of that time the contraband cargo had all been loaded on to the train, the cars reloaded, the last big plane was gone, and all the flares except one had been put out.

The train moved off and, rapidly gathering speed, disappeared in the direction of London. The men then flung themselves upon the great jumbled pile of boxes which had been thrown out of it, and started to carry them across the landing ground, disappearing into the belt of shadows beyond which the flare did not penetrate.

"What now?" thought Gregory. "My luck's been in so far and I'm not leaving till I find out what they do with the stuff." Crawling back by way of the ditch, he began to make a detour outside the lighted patch of ground and, after going a hundred yards, he stumbled through some low bushes and up a small bank to a road. Having crossed it, he slid down the slope on the other side and proceeded to follow the line of the lane, which curved slightly. The flare was now some distance away, but he could hear muffled voices carried on the night wind to the front of him and, a moment later, came upon a thick hedge which barred his passage. Scrambling up to the bank again he got round the corner of the hedge and saw that it hid the kitchen garden of a solitary house which loomed up before him, abutting on the road. A faint square of light filtering through a heavy curtain marked one of its downstairs windows.

Her venture into a new life lasted only a short time, however.
Local authorities were notified today by Pittsburgh police that they were holding Miss Edwards in Pittsburgh after she had been arrested by Constable George Bass.
The constable said he arrested the young Ohio farm girl after he had seen her attempt to "thumb"
a ride along the highway.
Miss Edwards told Pittsburgh Policewoman Ida Rickenrode she ran away from home because she was "tired of cutting tops off sugar beets for 50 cents a day."

vides a weekly fee of $7.50 for each

5. THE ARMY will add about 3,000 enlisted men and a few hundred officers to its rolls, including 1,500 added personnel for the air corps. Both army and navy air corps will buy more planes.
6. THE RECONSTRUCTION Finance Corporation, with a potential loan power of $1,500,000,000 speeded up its loan machinery so that it loaned $80,000,000 to businessmen in four months. Besides probable aid to railroads, the RFC has offered to put up many millions to finance public purchase of private utilities where federal and state power projects, such as TVA, create special problems.
7.—OTHER lending agencies, notably those concerned with home ownership, will continue their operations.
8. THE TREASURY will spend $7,000,000 this year for new federal buildings, mostly postoffices, in every state.
9. Economists studying general business conditions have drawn encouragement from the rise in stock market prices, slightly better railroad freight volume, inventory depletion, larger construction contracts, and similar factors.
They point out that some prices which they believed too high, such as steel and building materials, have come down, while quotations on many raw materials that were too low have come up slightly or have stopped sinking.
The treasury, meanwhile, continues to swell the amount of available credit in the banks by redeeming temporarily some of its outstanding debts, thus giving the banks cash instead of paper. On June 29, the idle money in banks was estimated at $2,900,000,000.
In the year which ended last night, the treasury had a deficit (not counting debt retirement) of about $1,380,000,000—the smallest in seven years.

U. S. CONCLUDES "RED INK" YEAR

Treasury Closes Books On Eight Such Year In a Row

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 1—The treasury closed books yesterday on its eighth consecutive "red ink" fiscal year, but found it owed less to private investors than it did a year ago.

Although the government spent $3,360,000,000 more than its income, the national debt was only $700,000,000 higher than a year ago because part of the deficit was paid by using idle gold.

Meanwhile, the social security and other governmental trust funds poured in $1,548,943,000 for investment in government securities. Thus, the treasury had about $350,000,000 left with which it retired some of its securities owned by private investors.

The treasury now owes about $3,300,000,000 to its own trust funds, $2,562,000,000 to the Federal Reserve banks, and the rest to the public.

Return To The Market
In the fiscal year starting today, however, the treasury will have to return to the market to borrow roughly $2,000,000,000. This will be in addition to the billion it will borrow automatically from trust funds in order to finance the huge new spending-lending program.

The debt now is $37,125,000,000 and may rise to $40,000,000,000 in the next year. It averages $287 a person, but was slightly higher early in March before income tax payments and gold used cut down the burden. The record high was $37,814,477,017 on March 12.

months increased $1,000,000,000 over the previous year, and expenditures of slightly more than $7,600,000,000 declined $400,000,000. Thus the 1938 deficit was about half that of the previous year and was the lowest since 1931.

Expenditures next year may reach $8,500,000,000. Receipts are expected to drop from this year's $7,200,000,000 to about $5,500,000,000 because of the effect of the business recession on income and excise taxes.

Theater Attractions

The latest film musical, "Cocoanut Grove," featuring Fred MacMurray and Harriet Hilliard, shows at the State tonight and Saturday. "Cocoanut Grove" tells the story of the beginning of a "name" band. Where they come from and how they originate is deftly told with a plot that concerns itself with the struggles of a young bandleader to make his mark at the world-famed Cocoanut Grove in Hollywood.

Band Leader's Struggles
MacMurray, in his role in the new film, plays an almost exact prototype of his own life before he crashed the movies. He is a young bandleader who has an aptitude for losing jobs quicker than he can get them, and as a result winds up flat broke with a rebellious band on his hands.

To keep them together he tells them that he has arranged for an audition at the Grove. The only problem that then confronts him is to get the "swingsters" to California.

Harriet Hilliard and Fred MacMurray in a scene from "Cocoanut Grove" at the State tonight and Saturday.

When one of his boys wins a contest with a trailer as a prize, the whole crew, and Miss Hilliard, who has been hired as a tutor for MacMurray's adopted son, head for the west coast. Enroute they suffer all kinds of hilarious trials and tribulations including the annexation of Rufe Davis to the band. Arriving at the coast, the smash musical climax of the film comes when MacMurray actually makes the grade at the Grove and opens in a blaze of glory.

"Last Stand" at Grand
Bringing a refreshingly new note of melody and romance which serves to enhance the spectacular scenes of the old west, "The Last Stand" will be the featured attraction at the Grand tonight and Saturday.

It features Bob Baker, who has jumped to fame as a cowboy crooner; the lovely Constance Moore, his leading lady; Fuzzy Knight in another of his whimsical characterizations and Earl Hodgins, as the villain.

The story is another tale of stockmen and cowboys who are forced to fight for their existence against a horde of rustlers and outlaws in the terrain adjacent to the Mexican borderland.

"The Last Stand," while replete with action and comedy interludes presents Bob Baker in three new songs. The principal one is "Adios, Old Kid From Laredo," but the two others are not less catchy and tuneful. They are "Let Me Ride Once More" and "The Last Dogie". They are enhanced by the fact that Baker accompanies himself on his guitar while singing them.

A new chapter of the adventure serial, "Zorro Rides Again," featuring John Carroll in the title role, Helen Christian, Reed Howes, Duncan Renaldo, Richard Alexander and Noah Beery, will be seen at the Grand tonight and Saturday.

CIO ATTORNEY IS REINSTATED

Edward Lamb Expresses Regret And Court Disbarment Proceedings Are Withdrawn

PORTSMOUTH, July 1.—A signed statement by Edward Lamb ended today disbarment proceedings against the Ohio counsel for the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The Toledo attorney's regrets for his courtroom action during a strike injunction hearing last summer were spread on the records of the Scioto common pleas court after Judge Hector S. Young of Marion, sitting by assignment, dismissed the case late yesterday.

"The dignity of the court has been upheld by the apology," Judge Young said. "Mr. Lamb has done what any other good lawyer should do—admit his fault and express his regret."

Lamb declared after court adjourned that he did not apologize, but made only an expression of regret. Later he said the dismissal was a "victory over the reactionaries."

Judge Young heard arguments on the case June 16 and reserved judgment until yesterday. The final ruling was not handed down, however, until after an all-day discussion between Lamb's counsel and the Scioto county bar committee which had charged him with "unprofessional conduct involving moral turpitude."

The accusation developed after a hearing last August in which Lamb represented striking United Shoe Workers in an injunction suit brought by the Williams Manufacturing Co. During the hearing Lamb remarked, "the defense was hijacked in this hearing," and then made other comments which caused Presiding Judge William R. White of Gallipolis to name a committee to investigate Lamb's conduct. On March 5 the committee recommended disbarment.

COLUMBIANS COP LEAGUE SECOND ROUND TITLE

Christians Aid Columbians In Capturing Championship By Spanking Lutheran Nine

Old Timers and Salem News Chalk Up Third Wins Of Third Round In Class A League; Scullion's Hit Gives Columbians Win Over M. E.

The second round championship of the Class A City Softball League was won by the Columbians today as they defeated the Lutheran Nine 10 to 6 in a game played at the Centennial park grounds.

The Christians aided the Columbians in capturing the championship by defeating the Emmanuel Lutheran, 9 to 8, in the other Class B tilt. The Columbians, who have won the championship in the past, were led by Paul Scullion, who drove in two runs, gave the Columbians their important triumph in the ninth inning after the game had been stretched into overtime when the score was tied at 6-6 at the end of the regulation seven innings.

The Methodists got away to a fast start in the opening game, but the Columbians rallied in the sixth to take the lead, 5 to 4, but their advantage lasted only until the first half of the second inning. The Methodists scored one run in the first half of the second to again tie the score at 5-5.

The M. E. team held a 4 to 3 lead until the fourth when the Columbians scored once to knot the game. The Methodists came back in the sixth to take the lead, 5 to 4, but their advantage lasted only until the first half of the second inning. The Methodists scored one run in the first half of the second to again tie the score at 5-5.

Neither team scored in the sixth and seventh innings and the game was forced into overtime. Both teams went blank in the eighth and ninth innings and the game was forced into overtime. Both teams went blank in the eighth and ninth innings and the game was forced into overtime.

The Christians rallied in the last half of the seventh frame, but the Emmanuel Lutheran, a single C. Beck with the bases loaded, drove the seventh frame drive in the runs which gave the Christians the win.

The Emmanuel, scoring twice in first, twice in the second, three in the third and once in the fourth, held the lead until the Christians rallied in the seventh frame. The Christians failed to break the scoring column until the eighth frame when they brought in the runs. They added four more in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Class A games last evening, Old Timers and Salem News chalked up their third victories of the round. The veterans took the sure of the Trades Class, 3 to 1, while the Newsies trounced Mullins, 5 to 3.

The Old Timers victory kept their third round record unbeaten and left them tied for first place.

MUNGO LEAVES DOGHOUSE FOR ONE-HIT GAME

Shows Lots of Old Stuff To Give Dodgers Win Over Bees, 5-0

They nailed a "for rent" sign on the Dodgers' "doghouse" today. For the first time in years, Van Mungo doesn't live there any more.

The arm gave up his long term lease on the strength of a one-hit pitching effort for a 5-0 win against the Boston Bees yesterday.

Mungo, you know, has been the sole resident of the Brooklyn doghouse for so long everyone thought he owned the place. They said at the start of this season that Van was back in the good graces of the powers that be, but no one was particularly impressed by that one.

Mungo had a couple of fair days, like his shutout against the Cubs some weeks back, and a 1-0 heartbreaker he dropped to the Giants. But in between there was more bad than good in his work. Yesterday, however, all that was changed. Although his sore elbow still was ailing, he showed a world of stuff and a lot of his old speed against Casey Stengel's stingless Bees. Hal Warstler's two-bagger was the only hit off him.

More important in the pennant picture, however, were the seven-hitter Slick Caserman turned in for the Giants and the three-hitter Cy Blanton posted for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Terrific Terry's outfit really didn't need all the pitching Castleman gave them. Almost any flinger could have coasted home behind the 19 hits the Giants fired in futility the Phillies, 14-1.

Since Blanton's three-hitter was at the expense of the slumping Reds from Cincinnati, giving the Pirates a 3-1 decision, the National league race was somewhat changed. The Giants' first-place margin was raised to four full games, and the Reds climbed over the Bees into second place. The Cubs' game with the Cardinals was rained out.

Over in the American league, the Yanks stretched their winning streak to five straight behind some neat flinging by Red Ruffing, who allowed only four hits and set down the Athletics, 7-1. Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich contributed homers.

The Yanks remained three games behind the Cleveland Indians, however, for the Tribe nosed out the Tigers, 10-9, when a single by Johnny Allen, who relieved a tiring Bobby Feller in the eighth, drove the winning run across.

Jock Knott, strictly a loss in days with the Browns, returned to St. Louis as a member of the Chicago White Sox and tossed a four-hitter at his ex-mates for an 11-1 victory. Young Jim Bagby allowed only six hits and paced the Boston Red Sox to an 11-1 win over the Senators.

Louis Won't Last Says Ex-Manager For Gene Tunney

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, July 1.—Take it from Jimmy Bronson, who managed Gene Tunney to the world's heavyweight championship and into the two greatest "gates" boxing has ever known, Joe Louis isn't going to hang on to the title for the next decade, as many of the experts are predicting.

The New Yorker, still interested in the fight game as a manager, wound up a "hurry-up" trip today to Ohio's capital, to get a look at Floyd Gibbons, a husky Columbus scrapper who has been topping opponents with monotonous regularity the last year. Bronson signed him, and headed back to New York with him.

"This fight game is a funny thing," Bronson said. "Some fellow wins the title and it looks as if he'll stay up there for a long time. But you can bet that the boy who is destined to beat the champ is just around the corner somewhere."

"This boy Gibbons may be the one. He's better than six feet tall, weighs about 200, and is only 21 years old. He has a 'kick' in either hand, and plenty of speed. You just can't tell when some youngster like that will blossom out as a top-notch challenger."

Bronson confided that the hunt for a "white hope" is on again, just as it was when Jack Johnson reigned over the heavyweight division. Practically all the big-time managers, he said, were "shaking the bushes" in search of someone capable of mounting to the top.

Jake Hart of Columbus, affiliated with boxing as a manager, promoter and referee for more than 40 years, started Gibbons in the fight game and brought him along until now. He figured Gibbons was ready for a crack at sterner stuff, so he tipped off Bronson.

Gibbons has scored 28 knockouts in his 35 fights, losing one decision and winning the others. The boy who won the lone verdict was kayoed in a return bout.

FISHING SEASON OPENED AT LAKE

100 Anglers Cast Lines At New Fishing Spot Near Palestine Power Plant

EAST PALESTINE, July 1.—Nearly 100 fishermen were on hand this morning to welcome the opening of the city lake, near the East Palestine power plant, to public fishing. Several large catches were reported.

State Conservation Commissioner Lawrence Woodell approved opening of the lake yesterday. Fish may be taken from 4 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily until the close of the season, Aug. 31. Strict watch will be maintained by game wardens to prevent fishing at other hours.

The lake has been closed to fishing for a number of years and during this time has been stocked with bass and other varieties of fish. Another shipment of fish will be received in the fall to replenish the lake after the season closes.

Commissioner Woodell announced that the state has secured easements on all lands surrounding the lake and has opened the entire tract to the use of licensed fishermen.

LEAGUE PREXY EXPLAINS HOW ALL-STAR WIN

Harridge Says Players of American League Have The Spirit

CHICAGO, July 1.—William Harridge, American league president, came up with a new theory today on how the circuit he heads has managed to win four of the five major league All-Star games.—"The old American league-college spirit."

"I don't know what arrangements the National league has made this year about placing its men in next week's game at Cincinnati," said Harridge, "but all the National league used to do was just notify the players and let it go at that. We don't do it that way, and the result, I think, has been our margin of games won."

"We take a lot of pride in winning these All-Star games," he continued. "You might call it the old college spirit, or league spirit, but we feel that the game is an all-league proposition rather than just a game between several individual stars."

"First, we write a letter to every American league player selected to play, instructing him as to the starting time of the game and the pre-game meeting with the manager. We ask each player to have his uniform in perfect condition and ask him to be in good condition for the game."

"Then we make all arrangements for the player's transportation to Cincinnati and from there to the city at which his team next will be playing. All hotel reservations are taken care of and the player does not have to pay expenses for the game out of his pocket and wait for reimbursement. It's surprising the number of letters we get from players after the game, thanking us for our consideration. They feel it a real honor to play for the league and as a result, play better ball."

The American league, Harridge said, also writes to each club manager, asking him, so far as possible, to have pitchers named for the All-Star tilt in first-class condition. Harridge admits that the "percentage" appears to favor the National league next Wednesday, but he still believes his circuit's team is a good bet to make it five wins out of six starts.

Cincy Puts Reds Through Mill On Return To City

Hail Return of Ball Team After Most Successful Eastern Road Trip In Many Years

CINCINNATI, July 1.—There's a question whether Deacon Bill McKeechle will get his Reds ready to play the Chicago Cubs tonight.

For the city is putting the team through the mill, starting the minute the train bringing them from Pittsburgh pulls into the big union terminal. (They lost a ball game to the Pirates yesterday, 3 to 1, but that hasn't cooled this city's heart a bit.)

As the train stops, there's the blast of the bands hitting up "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." That's for Johnny Vander Meer.

As Ernie Lombardi steps out, there's an oomph or two for all that hitting, and a flock of oomphs for Frank McCormick, Ival Goodman, Harry Craft and the rest of the boys who have been banging the Reds through their most successful road trip in who knows how many years. (They lost the series to Pittsburgh, two games to one, but that hasn't cooled this city's heart a bit.)

What they play when the Deacon himself steps off is a matter of the moment's inspiration. Not the "Anvil Chorus," certainly. That music has been stowed away for the season around here.

And after all the shouting, Deacon McKeechle hopes to get his laddies off to the seclusion of their various Cincinnati homes for some quiet before the battle tonight. Paul Derringer especially because he will pitch.

The Reds lost that game yesterday simply because Cy Blanton was "hot."

Bucky Walters pitched a good game. He gave a dozen hits, but kept them well scattered. But Cy was better, and he got the victory.

That made six defeats against 10 victories on the road for the Reds and they exchanged second place for third with the Pirates.

SALEM RIDERS AT ZELIENOPLE

Local Poloists To Meet Top-Ranking Team of Penn-Ohio Loop

Riders of the Salem Polo club are expected to face their toughest opposition of the season this weekend when they invade Pennsylvania territory for Penn-Ohio league games with the Old Furnace club of Zelenople, Pa.

The Salem poloists will meet Zelenople for the first time of the season Sunday afternoon and will return to action against the Old Furnace riders again Monday.

Zelenople currently leads the Penn-Ohio league's championship race with four straight victories and no defeats. Salem is tied for second place in the league with North Hills of Pittsburgh and the Bar-K Cowboys of Akron.

Raymond Moff, James Pidgeon, Jr., Anthony Sheen and Brooke Votaw will be up for the Salem team with Wilford Smith as spare.

BUDGE DEFENDS BRITISH TITLE

Meets Bunney Austin In Wimbledon Singles
Finals Today

BULLETIN
WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 1.—Playing in irresistible form, red-headed Don Budge crashed Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin of England, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3 today to win the all-England singles tennis championship for the second year in succession.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 1.—Notes on Britain's most famous tennis tournament as it nears an almost all-American end:

Don Budge and Gene Mako will leave for Holland Saturday night for a series of matches.

The finals, including Budge and England's Bunny Austin in the men's singles today and two Helens, Moody and Jacobs, in three women's singles tomorrow, will be sent by television.

After having failed to win a single woman's title in the 1937 American campaign, the U. S. girls certainly staged a comeback; Dorothy May Bundy won the Australian singles title, and three, Alice Marble, Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs, reached the Wimbledon semi-finals.

A victory for Budge today will make him the first foreigner to defend successfully his Wimbledon title since big Bill Tilden turned the trick in 1921.

NEW CHAMPION TO BE NAMED

College Golf Certain To Have New Titleholder
After Tourney

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 1.—Collegiate golf will have a new champion.

Three sophomores and a junior, all making their first bids for the title, play today in the 36-hole semi-final round of the national intercollegiate golf tournament.

Co-Medalist Lew W. Oelum of Chattanooga, Tenn., and the University of Virginia, the lone junior, was paired with and favored over Bert McDowell of Kansas City, the remaining Louisiana State entry.

Bob Babbish of the University of Detroit, quarter-finals conqueror of top-favored Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., and Holy Cross, and John P. Burke of Georgetown, both consistent shooters of par or better, were rated a toss-up in the other bracket.
